The Sohmer Cupid Grand is the most successful small in their lessons. They are so young and have taken the drug so short a time that they are not seriously affected. They were handsome, blue eyed, flaxen haired children, and smiled and grasped the principal's hand at a pat on the head from a stranger.

Cases in Other Schools.

The other problem is nothing new to Miss Long. She has wrestled with it off and on for years, and with the help of her staff is in a fair way of conquering it so far as her school is concerned.

She said today that exaggerated reports must not go out. The fact was that only six out of the 720 children in her care probably have been doped with ether, although in a few other cases its use was suspected. She had about given up trying to reason with the mothers of these children. They are so muddled themselves by the habit that they insist it's good for the youngsters.

She finds the mothers more responsive.
Few of the men are addicted to ether, Miss Long says. In fact, they hate it.
But to the mothers, in the cases under discussion, it is effect and cause. The appropriate hostess for evening parties too. The hostess opens a cupboard and produces her can from the drug store.
Into each glass of water she pours two tablespoonfuls and adds a little sugar.
The odor is prodigious, but ladies learn to love it.

"Yet, so far as I can find out, the mothers do not deliberately give ether to their children," Miss Long says.

"They do it when they are stupefied, or they read the riot act just as children have been known to take a sip of beer or wine when it is in the homes of foreign people who are used to these things as a family drink. I first heard of children drinking ether about ten years ago. They were members of two families.

"The mothers said they dipped a lump of sugar in ether and gave it to the children to break up colds. It was stopped at that time by the Superintendent of Schools, the school nurse and the police. There was no law to invoke, but they read the riot act just the same."

The ether sold to a school child was analyzed by Prof. Lewis B. Allen, nurse expert and director of the Westfield Testing Laboratory. It was the regulation hospital stuff. The police refer to the tins it comes in as "four drunk-cans," there being four ounces and an ounce producing a maximum of enjoyment at one time. Its kick works almost instantly. The father sings and dances and owns the world and quickly passes into a stupor from which he is likely to emerge nauseated.

Sister D. Stiles, Superintendent of Schools, took to Prof. Allen the seven-year-old boy who bought the test can.
He was amiable and stupid. His breath was strong enough to produce a chemical reaction.

"Ether inflames the upper part of the digestive tract; overtaxes the lungs and nerves, and plays the dickens with the nervous system," said Dr. Allen to-day.

Sold as Patent Medicine.

Under another name than its own ether is to be had for a small price here and elsewhere in Massachusetts.
It is a patent medicine described on the label of the bottle as an anodyne containing 65 per cent. of alcohol. One whiff tells you what it is—sulphuric ether. The same parts of the population buy ether undiluted purchase the anodyne in great quantities. They believe it kept them from being sick on the voyage from Europe. The proprietor of a general store in Westfield said without reserve to-day that he sold the anodyne to any adult. An old man who works in an iron foundry buys two bottles of it at a drug store every morning on his way to work and drains both at two gulps. He is a Lithuanian. He says it makes him healthy.

It was reported a few days ago that parents here give their children ether to reduce their appetites and bolster-ness. The reporter found no support for this theory to-day, although every one in the city had heard it. The best information seemed to be that in every case in which parents were guilty of sinning the children to have the drug the home was one in which the drinking of ether was regarded by the mother as a normal and commendable diversion.
The whole question is to be investigated by H. C. Lythgoe, State Food and Drug Director.

Special Despatch to THE NEW YORK HERALD.
WESTFIELD, MASS., April 5.—A SUNDAY fact in the story of the school children who drink ether is that they attend a model school in the model city of Westfield, known far and wide as the pure food town. A fact tempering the strangeness is that they are the children of Polish peasants, who in a certain number of cases think nothing of pouring ether out of a tin can and passing it around as a social beverage.

The oddest thing is that although ether, thus used, wrecks the digestion and numbs the mind, it can be bought and sold—sold even to children—with impunity.

Westfield has thumbed all the statutes and found neither Federal nor State law against it.

A few days ago a seven-year-old tow-head in the Fort Meadow school who came to class smelling like a hospital told the principal he could "buy ether anywhere." By direction of the superintendent of schools the principal made a test. He gave the boy thirty-five cents. He went to a drug store and was back in ten minutes with a tin can containing four ounces. One ounce is regarded by medical authorities as a lethal dose for an unhabituated adult.

Won't Sell It Now.

All the druggists in Westfield except one have agreed to sell no ether to children and none to adults except for medical purposes, such as the production of anesthesia by qualified administrators and the salting of gasoline by motorists, who think a drop or two of ether gives the engine a flip. The man who held out of the agreement is the one who sold the boy of 7 a can of stuff. He stands on his legal rights. He may be brought to terms by the State Board of Pharmacy, which grants and revokes licenses. Westfield is fortunate in having the chairman of that board, P. N.
Hall, living right here.

A reporter for THE NEW YORK HERALD visited the Fort Meadow School to-day, talked with the principal and saw three of the children who at times have come from home stupefied with ether and reeling with the fumes that two of the teachers were sickened. They were girls, ages 6, 7 and 8. Two of them are sisters. The principal, Miss Mary A. Long, described their mothers as German Poles. They are widows and came to Westfield from Scranton, Pa. Each of the three girls was kept after school, not for punishment but in order to receive individual attention from her teacher. The ether addicts are behind

A fourth woman was added to the ever increasing cast of the Stillman romance yesterday. Who she is, where she is and the details of her alleged association with the president of the National City Bank were facts omitted from the story issued from an authority on the case.

But, according to the story, she is to take her place beside Florence Lawlor Leeds and the other unnamed woman in the accumulating affidavits Mrs. Stillman is preparing for addendum to her original counter charges and amendment thereto. At any rate, detectives operating in the interests of Mrs. Stillman have been gathering data concerning this new woman and are promising definite results and even confessing affidavits within a short time. The first intimation Mrs. Still-man's lawyers had of her existence, it was said, arrived in anonymous letters that turned out to be founded upon facts. This additional woman is said to have enjoyed the friendship of Mr. Stillman before Florence Leeds arrived upon the scene. The success of Miss Leeds, the story goes, did not serve to sweeten the temper of her predecessor.

That Mrs. Stillman is determined to add to her countercharges appears certain. On the other hand, De Lancey Nicoll and Cornelius J. Sullivan began to send out for new witnesses who might bolster up the half-discredited Beauvais letters. From Syracuse came Spencer H. Lewis, a senior in Syracuse University, to be questioned by Mr. Sullivan concerning his knowledge of Fred Beauvais. With Lewis appeared Harlow B. Ansell, a Syracuse lawyer, who represents the interests of Leeds.

Lewis and Beauvais are close friends, Messrs. Nicoll and Sullivan were of the opinion that men of such close friendship must have exchanged confidences and that it would not have been unnatural for Beauvais to have mentioned Mrs. Stillman to his friend. It is about such confidences that the lawyers desire to question the student.

To contradict that, news came from Mrs. Stillman's side to the effect that they have gone overseas for evidence
